

List of objectives usually associated to Internationalisation of universities

- Enhancing Internationalisation of the curriculum
- Improving Foreign language training for your students
- Increasing Recruitment of foreign students
- Develop new curricula with more international focus
- Increasing Study abroad and exchange opportunities for your students at bachelor level
- Increasing Study abroad and exchange opportunities for your students at master level
- Increasing Study abroad and exchange opportunities for your students at PhD level
- Design and negotiate sound and effective International co-operation agreements
- Improving International exchange opportunities for your faculty
- Attracting more International guest lecturers
- Setting up a sound policy and structure to design Joint and/or double degrees
- Increasing International internships for students and faculty
- Increasing the organization of fieldwork training for international incoming students
- Enhancing cooperation with international companies for training or career service
- Improving the organization of International summer courses and short courses
- Increasing the opportunities for International study visits by students and faculty
- Increasing the involvement of your local Community in international practices
- Increasing the number of your academic staff with a PhD abroad
- Set up a plan of Intercultural training for your students
- Increasing the participation to international projects
- Increasing the capacity to do fundraising to reinvest in internationalisation activities
- Improving the participation to international research groups
- Facilitating International sabbatical leave opportunities for faculty
- Improving Research-related training abroad of PhD students
- Improving Research in intrinsically international subjects (e.g. int. environment, international relations, climate change, natural resources)
- Becoming an hub to facilitate relations into local and international companies
- Establish research centres of excellence in disciplines that may offer international visibility
- Improving the participation to International networks of research institutions by discipline/specialization
- Improve the participation of your researchers in international R&D projects
- Increase the number of international events (conferences, workshops etc...) for attracting international colleagues
- Improve the visibility of your university in order to attract international researchers for study periods
- Increasing the relation with IRAQI professors that work abroad